NC Wholesalers	Meta Lead Ads	Hook testing — pick winners, build full ads

Seven scroll-stopping hooks for the NC Wholesaler funnel. Each card shows the hook line, the hook type, the format it works best in, and a body-angle seed for developing it into a full ad. Pick the top 2–3 to A/B test against the live ad-a-pain creative.

The thread — all seven build toward the same product idea: a licensed NC GC writes the rehab budget AND commits to do the work at that number. That's the differentiator that makes a buyer sign without negotiating.

HOOK #11

“Wholesaling isn't a numbers business. It's a construction business.”

Type: Counter-intuitive provocation · Best for: Static or talking head, all formats

Body angle to develop: You found the deal, you ran the comps — the buyer still chops you. Because the value of a wholesale assignment lives in defending the rehab number. That's a construction question, not a math question.

HOOK #21

“Why does the same deal pay $8K to one wholesaler and $40K to another?”

Type: Question hook (curiosity gap) · Best for: Static, video, or carousel intro

Body angle to develop: Pairs with the 3-tier comparison: napkin guess / solo estimate / GC build commitment. The buyer's behavior depends on the source of the number.

HOOK #23

“What separates a $5K wholesaler from a $40K one?”

Type: Question / identity · Best for: Talking head opener, also static

Body angle to develop: It's not the deals. It's not the comps. It's whether the rehab number comes with a builder behind it.

HOOK #24“What if the buyer COULDN'T argue with your rehab number?”

Type: Question / aspirational · Best for: Talking head, video, hero static

Body angle to develop: Lead into the GC build commitment — the buyer can't argue with the number because the GC who wrote it is the one who'll do the work for it.

HOOK #25“I'm a licensed NC GC. Here's what I see at closing tables.”

Type: Authority / confession · Best for: Talking head — strongest hook for VO/founder face

Body angle to develop: Show the pattern from the GC's perspective: wholesalers can't defend their rehab numbers, buyers chop them, deals close at the bottom. SCC's role is to write the number AND commit to the build.

HOOK #26“Real talk — I lost $35K guessing the rehab.”

Type: Confession / testimonial · Best for: Talking head, ideally an actual wholesaler

Body angle to develop: First-person story. Pulled comps, guessed rehab, watched buyer chop it. The fix: bring a GC who writes AND builds. Last three closings: $32K / $38K / $42K.

HOOK #32“We're a licensed NC GC. We'll write your rehab number AND build it.”

Type: Brand-direct (build commitment lead) · Best for: Direct response static, retargeting, founder talking head

Body angle to develop: The build commitment IS the offer. The wholesaler gets a number the buyer can't argue with because the GC who wrote it is the one putting on the tool belt at that price.
