

WHAT YOU RECEIVE

Repair Credit Letter

A formal, GC-signed letter on Southern Cities letterhead that puts an exact, defensible dollar credit on inspection items — the document that ends the 'we don't know what it costs' stalemate and gets the other agent to a number.

WHAT THIS IS + HOW TO USE IT

Authority weight, on paper

When the other side dismisses your repair-credit ask, a paste-ready email isn't enough — you need a formal document on a licensed GC's letterhead. This is that document: a signed letter assigning an exact dollar credit per item, with the pricing basis attached.

WHEN TO USE IT

Use this the moment the other agent pushes back on a credit ask, or when the seller's agent needs something they can forward to their client. The signature is what moves the number.

To whom it may concern,

At the request of the buyer's agent, Southern Cities Construction (NC GC License #107724) reviewed the inspection report for the above property and priced the flagged repair items at current Charlotte-area cost. Based on that review, a repair credit of $11,400 is supported, itemized as follows and detailed on the attached schedule.

This figure reflects licensed-GC pricing for materials and labor to bring the identified items to standard. It is provided as a good-faith basis for the parties' negotiation.

Sincerely,

Darius T. Walton

ITEMIZED CREDIT BACKUP

Every dollar, defensible

ITEM	SCOPE	CREDIT
HVAC	18-yr unit, replace 3-ton + furnace	$6,000
Roof	Patch + 3 yrs life, disclose	$0
Plumbing	Poly supply lines, partial re-pipe	$3,200
Electrical	Panel double-taps + GFCI	$1,000
Exterior	Peeling paint (FHA flag)	$1,200
TOTAL		$11,400

PRICING METHODOLOGY

How the credit was set

BASIS

Each item priced at 2026 Charlotte-area trade-network cost for materials + labor to bring it to standard — not retail, not worst-case. Where an item has remaining useful life (e.g., the roof), no credit is assigned; condition is disclosed instead.

WHY IT HOLDS UP

Because it's specific and licensed-GC-signed, the number survives scrutiny. The other side can argue a vibe; they can't easily argue a GC's itemized pricing on letterhead.

BUYER-SIDE vs LISTING-SIDE

Same letter, two plays

SIDE	HOW YOU USE IT
Buyer's agent	Justify the credit ask with a licensed-GC number the seller can't hand-wave away
Listing agent	Set a defensible credit so you're not negotiating against an inflated demand blind
Either	A document the other agent can forward to their client — moves the conversation off 'feelings'

THE COMMON CASE

Many agents order this the day after the inspection report lands — before the other side anchors high. A GC-signed number on the table first sets the frame for the whole negotiation.

HOW TO DELIVER IT

Win the negotiation

THE MOVE

Forward the letter to the other agent with one line: 'Attached is our licensed-GC credit basis — happy to discuss any line.' You've replaced an argument with a document. Most counters come back within a day, and closer to your number.

FAQ

Common questions

CAN I USE IT BUYER-SIDE AND LISTING-SIDE?

Yes. Buyer-side it justifies the ask; listing-side it sets a defensible credit so you're not negotiating blind.

HOW FAST?

One business day from the inspection report. Rush available.

WHAT IF THEY DISPUTE A LINE?

We'll discuss any item directly — the pricing is ours to defend, which is exactly why it carries weight.
